Information Insights is seeking an undergraduate Research Intern for next semester (January through May) to help with data collection and research, project reporting, data management, public process facilitation, maintaining company and client websites and social media accounts, and other various projects.

This is a paid position with perks including very flexible hours, proximity to UAF (our office is located inside the Cold Climate Housing Research Center, which is less than 1 mile from campus), excellent mentorship opportunities, and training in a diverse range of skills and computer programs as needed.

Applicants should have strong communication skills, computer literacy, and an interest in serving Alaskans.

More about us: Information Insights is a research and management consulting firm based in Fairbanks, AK. We perform policy research and analysis in many areas including energy, economic development, and public health. We also offer organizational support, survey research, and public engagement and facilitation. Our clients include tribal organizations and ANCSA Corporations, federal agencies, nonprofits, businesses, and state and local governments. Information Insights maintains an open office environment and a highly collaborative, non-hierarchical organizational structure.

Interested applicants should submit a resume and cover letter to hr@iialaska.com. For more information, email or call (907) 450-2450.

Also, if students have questions about the job, I'm a current UAF undergrad and I would be more than happy to answer any questions they may have. My UAF email is klcasort@alaska.edu.
