The USGS Alaska Science Center in Anchorage is hiring seasonal technicians to work on several wildlife and fisheries projects (see link to the job ads below). We are looking for people to do a variety of tasks (depending on the project and specific needs) including lab work, field work, and office/data work. If you are smart and motivated and might be interested in a position here check out the following links. The job ads don't have a lot of details because they cover multiple positions, but here are links to the research groups that are hiring:

https://www.usgs.gov/centers/asc/science/shorebird-research https://www.usgs.gov/centers/asc/science/landbird-research-alaska https://www.usgs.gov/centers/asc/science/ecosystems-analytics https://www.usgs.gov/centers/asc/science/goose-research https://www.usgs.gov/centers/asc/science/dabbling-and-diving-duck-research