Hello,

Worldwide Opportunities on Organic Farms, USA (WWOOF-USA) invites your students to participate in an educational and cultural exchange focused on organic agriculture in the USA.

The way WWOOF works: “WWOOFers” spend about half of each day helping on a host farm, learn about the organic agriculture movement, and receive free room and board during their visit – with no money exchanged between host farmers and WWOOFers.
WWOOFing could be an excellent internship opportunity for any students interested in learning about sustainable agriculture, community or cultural studies, culinary arts, veterinary programs, health and nutrition, environmental sciences, and so much more. The program is flexible in length and focus, and can be tailored by students to meet their interests. Opportunities are available year-round, either over the summer or during fall/spring semesters.

Please forward this email to any students who may be interested. Thank you!

To get a better sense of the opportunities available through WWOOF, we encourage students to:

- Explore our online directory of more than 2,000 organic farms, gardens, ranches and homesteads across the country
- View photos of host farms in our interactive photo gallery
- Watch videos straight from the farm, featuring our hosts' and WWOOFers' stories about why they WWOOF and what they've learned from the program
- Read testimonials from members around the world
- Register to gain full access to the directory & start contacting farmers today!

WWOOF farms offer a variety of educational opportunities, including learning about organic agriculture techniques, permaculture, ecological farming, beekeeping, sustainable construction and living techniques, ranching, viticulture, culinary studies, community and rural studies, and much more. With farms in all 50 states, plus Puerto Rico, there is something for everyone.
To learn more, become a member and gain full access to WWOOF-USA's online directory of organic farms, plus all of the other features of the website. These include member forums (a great place to search for current opportunities and connect with other WWOOFers), ratings and reviews for the farms, an interactive map of the farms, and direct messaging to hosts. Memberships are valid for one year from the time of registration.
